MANY MEET DEATH IN FIRE.

Nine Story Building in Philadelphia Wrapped in Flames.

Special to the TELEGRAPH.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 25.—A great fire is raging in the building of Hunt, Wilkinson & Co., upholsterers, a nine story structure in this city where hundreds of people are employed. Many were killed by jumping from the windows. Seventeen bodies have so far been taken to the morgue and many more must be inside the burning building.

THREE WEDDINGS YESTERDAY.

Afternoon and Evening Ceremonies ---Fred Mulkins Surprises Friends.

Rice-Murphy.

A quiet, unostentatious autumn wedding yesterday afternoon wasthat which united the lives of Miss Maude Rice and Claude E. Murphy. The event occurred at 2 o'clock at the Christian church in the presence of about fifty friends and relatives. Miss Bessie Dunn at the organ rendered the wedding march as the handsome young couple marched down the aisle to the altar aisle to the altar. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Finnis Idleman, using the ring service. Miss Rice was gowned in white taffeta and carried white carnations. After congratulations from those present, the young people went to Chicago on an afternoon train for a ten days stay. The bride is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs J. W. Rice of Madison avenue and Second street. She came here from Ashton with her parents about seven years ago and through her sunny disposition and many admirable qualities has made a host of friends. Her work as a member of both the Christian church and its Sunday school speaks for itself. Mr. Murphy has resided in Dixon for a number of years. He is an expert wood finisher for Contrctor W. J. McAlpine. He is an upright and worthy young man in every way. The young couple will be at home to their many friends after Nov. 12 at No. 168 Peoria avenue.

Walker-Mulkins.

Yesterday afternoon while delivering the afternoon mail at the postoffice Fred Mulkins joked with the clerks and carriers as to the alarming frequency of matrimonial ventures. "I believe I'll try it myself" laughed Fred as he went out of the door. He made good his words by last evening by leading to the hymeneal altar a most estimable young lady. The happy occasion was the union of two of Dixon's well known and popular young people, Fred A. Mulkins and Miss Marie Frances Walker. Promptly at 8:30, the time set for the ceremony, Dr. Cryor pronounced the beautiful Presbyterian service that united them in wedlock. The groom has resided in this city for the past four years and is a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. A.I. Gage. He has made their residence his home. The bride came here four years ago from Nebraska. They go at once to their cottage home on South Peoria avenue, where their many friends wish them a happy honeymoon and a long and pleasant life.

Weaver--Sweeney.

At 8 o'clock last evening Attorney A. G. Harris, J. P., united in marriage James Sweeney and Mrs. Cornelia Weaver of this city.

Another Death at County Farm.

Peter Breaghtel died at the County Farm at 2 o'clock this morning from heart disease, of which he had been a sufferer for over a year. He was taken to the farm, from South Dixon, on September 25th. He was 78 years of age last July, a native of the Tyrol, Austria, and came to this country 33 years ago with the late Anthony Rueland. He has one brother, who is blind, living in LaSalle. The burial will be at the County Farm, probably tomorrow.

Skull Crushed.

A 5-year-old daughter of Michael Gleason, south of Rock Falls met with a terrible accident Tuesday, which may result in death. She was running in company with her brother to meet one of the farm wagons returning from the field loaded with corn, when the driver in trying to avoid driving over the little boy, failed to notice the little girl, who was struck by the wagon and knocked down. One of the wheels struck the little one in the head, crushing the skull back of the ear.

DEATH OF MRS. WM. WOOLLEY.

Expires at 7:55 Last Evening at Talcott Home on West First Street.

Death came last evening to the William W. Woolley home and carried away his loving helpmate and wife. Mrs. Woolley's maiden name was Miss Nora Edleman, She was the daughter of Mrs, James Edleman of Calamus, Ia, who has been with her since Saturday to soothe her last hours. Mrs. Woolley was born seven miles north of Calamus and was reared in that vicinity. She with two brothers closed their studies by attending the Dixon College. It was while here that she met her future husband and they were married at Calamus eleven years ago last May. Two children, both deceased, were the result of the union. For the past eight years Mr. and Mrs. Woolley have resided at Woosung, but their new house being almost ready for occupancy, they removed to this city last Wednesday, being guests at the Talcott home near their own. It has been the earnest wish of Mrs Woolley to live in their new home, but it was otherwise willed and she passed away last evening at 7:55 o'clock. Her illness had extended for over a year and was the result of a complication of diseases. She was 38 years old last Saturday. Her father died about two years ago and was followed at intervals by a sister and brother. Nine brothers and two sisters are left to mourn her loss. Two brothers, Edward and George, arrived yesterday afternoon from Iowa.

The funeral will be held at the home of W. C. Woolley at the corner of Fifth street and Nachusa avenue at 2 p m. Sunday.

CAUGHT IN SHAFTING.

Al. Derr Barely Escapes a Serious Accident.

Al. Derr, while attempting to tighten a belt on a shafting in W. J. McAlpine's shop yesterday forenoon, caught the leg of his pants on the set screw. The shafting runs close to the floor so Mr. Derr was not thrown around it, but drawn up to the shafting and bound so tightly that the eight-inch belt slipped on the pulley. Workmen were obliged to cut his clothes in order to release him. The ligaments of his right leg were severely strained just above the knee and he is to be congratulated that he came out of the accident as fortunately as he did.

Brakeman Will Recover.

Harrison J. Hower, the C. B. & Q. brakeman of Sterling, who was injured at Jocelyn, a small station near Erie, yesterday, will probably recover. A gash nearly eight inches long was cut in Hauer's left side and back. One rib was broken on the left side and the man was badly bruised about the side, shoulders and back. It is thought, however, that he is not injured internally and that his recovery will be a question only of time. The injured man is at his home on Locust street, Sterling.

Died at Ashton.

Mrs. Anna D. White died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. C. Cass, in Ashton, last Saturday morning. She had been in feeble health for some time, but her death at the last was quite sudden. While conversing with friends, and feeling fairly well, she suddenly felt a shortness of breath and asked for a doctor: but expired before the medical man could reach her bedside. Mrs. White was 62 years of age, a native of Sweden, but had been a resident of this country for many years. Her remains were taken to Stockton, Ills., for burial.

Seeking Dead Man's Friends.

A Modern Woodmen pass book of the Pine Village, Indiana, camp was found among the effects of J. A. Denney, who died at the hospital. Recept for dues paid to the first of October were entered. Royal Jones, clerk of Camp 56, has telegraphed to the clerk at Pine Village asking for instructions for the disposition of the body.

Child is Burned to Death.

You Have Got to Live With A Furnace.

every day.

Then do you think it is worth while to take some time investigating the kind of furnace you are going to take into your home?

You would not take a room mate without trying to find out what sort of a character he had, and yet a bad furnace can be even more disagreeable than a human being when it tries.

The Round Oak furnace is an agreeable furnace to have in the house. It does its work and lets you do yours. It saves work and saves money, warms the house and leaves it clean.

To assure good results, as we've told you before, we've hired a furnace expert to install all our furnaces.

EMPHATIC TALK.

The Kind that Carries Conviction to Every North Dixon Reader.

Conviction must follow such emphatic proof as is given here. The testimony of North Dixon residents should satisfy the most skeptcal. Here is a North Dixon case. Read it and see if doubt can exist in the face of this evidence.

Mrs. A. Fine, of 169 Chamberlain Street, North Dixon, says:

"When I went to Leake Bro's drug store for Doan's Kidney Pills I had very little expectation of the treatment doing me any good, for I had suffered so long with kidney complaint and was suffering so severely at the time that I had almost given up hope of ever obtaining relief. I am averse to the use of proprietary medicines, but my husband had heard so much about Doan's Kidnev Pills that he insisted upon me trying them. I did so and was promptly benefitted. If all sufferers from kidney ailments could be induced to use Doan's Kidney Pills, kidney complaint in any of its various forms would disappear."

Brain-Food Nonsense.

Another ridiculous food fad has been branded by the most competent authorities. They have dispelled the silly notion that one kind of food is needed for brain, another for muscles, and still another for bones. A correct diet will not only nourish a particular part of the body, but it will sustain every other part. Yet, however good your food may be, its nutriment is destroyed bo indigestion or dyspepsia. You must prepare for their appearance or prevent their coming by taking regular doses of Green's August Flower, the favorite medicine of the healthy millions. A few doses aids digestion, stimulates the liver to healthy action, purifies the blood, and makes you feel buoyant and vigorous. You can get Dr. G. G. Green's reliable remedies at E. M. Bunnell Co. It Happened In a Drug Store.

"One day last winter a lady came to my drug store and asked or a brand of cough medicine that I did not have in stock," says Mr. C. R. Grandin, the popular druggist of Ontario, N. Y. "She was disappointed and wanted to know what cough preparation I could recommend. I said to her that I could freely recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and that she could take a bottle of the remedy and after giving it a fair trial if did not find it worth the money to bring back the bottle and I would refund the price paid. In the course of a day or two the lady came back in company with a friend in need of a cough medicine and advised her to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I consider that a very good recommendation for the remedy." It is for sale by Rowland Bros.

HISTORY OF A CRUISE

Schley Begins the Story of His Voyage from Key West to Santiago.

HIS VISIT TO ADMIRAL SAMPSON

Cienfuegos at That Time the Supposed Destination of Cervera.

Argument in Favor of That Supposition, to Which Schley Agreed—Arrival Off the Empty Harbor.

Washington, Oct. 25.—Admiral Schley yesterday took the stand in his own behalf at the court of inquiry. He was summoned a few minutes after the court convened at 2 p. m., and when the court adjourned he apparently had only gotten well under way in his testimony. When the admiral took the stand he gave his name and rank, in reply to questions. "I was a commodore," the witness began in response to Rayner's request for a connected narrative of the campaign, "and was ordered to command the flying squadron on the 28th of March, 1898, and served until the 20th day of June of the same year in that capacity." He had taken command of the squadron at Hampton Roads, Va., hoisting his flag on the cruiser Brooklyn.

Concluded to Do It Himself.

After relating the organization of the squadron at the Virginia port he said that he had called the commanding officers of the vessels constituting that squadron together, and then he added: "The plan of campaign was threshed out. I put the squadron immediately upon a war footing and established pickets and patrols and also the masking of lights." He found many men of many minds and concluded to take the responsibility himself and plan his own campaign. He "explained to all the commanding officers that as it would be impossible to contrive a plan of battle that would meet unforeseen contingencies, the general plan of the squadron would be to cruise in line of battle and its general principle would be to attack the head and leading vessel, concentrating the fire upon them in order."

Squadron Arrives at Key West.

After detailing the target practice and other matters of preparation, the admiral said that the flying squadron arrived at Key West on May 17, the admiral thought, and he proceeded: "Whilst there the commodore showed me a telegraphic order from the honorable secretary of the navy directing me to proceed with all dispatch to the blockade of Havana. During the time I was on shore there were several of the Cuban people resident there who informed me that the province in which Cienfuegos was situated, and from that to the westward, was almost thoroughly occupied by Spanish troops, and that we had better be careful in any attempt at intercourse."

TALKS IT OVER WITH SAMPSON

Impressions That the Commodore Carried Away With Him.

Schley then told of the arrival of the New York with Sampson on board, and of a visit he paid Sampson immediately. "I found that the admiral was very much worn, and necessarily so, because his responsibility had been very great. He had had great trouble in keeping his squadron together, and he appeared to me as if he was in a good deal of anxiety, which I could readily appreciate." Then they talked of the division of the fleet, and Sampson said "that which ever side I went on to remember that they were very heavily fortified, and that his confidential instructions—which he delivered to me verbally—were that we were not to risk our battleships against the fortified places of the coast until after the Spanish squadron had been disposed of.

"My recollection now is that he told me it was at Curacoa. The impression left upon my mind was that it was somewhere in the Venezuelan gulf, and that it was supplied with ammunition and stores destined to Havana, and that was undoubtedly the point it was to reach. He said his information was that the orders of the Spanish fleet to reach Hanava or some point in railroad communication with it were imperative, and that he believed and thought that Cienfuegos would be the point, as that came under the acceptation of the order more directly. We looked over maps, and I must say I agreed with him. I could not imagine that any one who had studied the military situation of the island at all could have supposed that Santiago would have fulfilled any of the conditions of this instruction.

* * * * * *

"I asked the admiral if there had been established any means of communicating with the insurgents; whether there were any pilots, or whether any locality was known where they were to be found. He told me that he did not know, but that when he got the situation better in hand he would communicate with me, but that he thought it would be better for me to start as early as we could get away and blockade Cienfuegos."

MEETING WITH CAPTAIN M'CALLA

Schley Tells of the Megaphone Incident—Arrival off Cienfuegos.

Sampson promised to send him information as it reached him [Sampson] and the squadron sailed for Cienfuegos. Three or four hours after leaving Key West he met McCalla with the Marblehead. McCalla stopped for permission to pass on, as is the naval custom, and sent the Eagle to communicate with the flying squadron. Admiral Schley said the Scorpion had been sent to intercept the Eagle for the purpose of securing whatever information she might bring. "After a little," he said, "the Scorpion returned and reported through the megaphone, I think, identically as is reported in his log, which was all the information he gave us. The Eagle afterward passed close enough to the Brooklyn to hail her by the megaphone and repeated that there was no news. I was on the quarter deck. The thing seemed to be almost burned into my mind, but after what I have heard I begin to think that maybe I was mistaken."

Meeting the Cincinnati later he asked her captain (Chester) if there was a good place to coal on the south Cuban coast, but the captain knew of none. Admiral Schley placed his arrival off Cienfuegos at near midnight of May 21. He told of hearing guns early that evening while still thirty or forty miles distant from the Cuban port. Describing this incident, he said: "Toward sundown of that afternoon I was standing on the bridge of the Brooklyn and distinctly heard six or seven guns fired with the cadence of a salute. The fact of hearing these guns was undoubted, so much so that the officer of the deck spoke of it."

He said that the fleet stopped for the night ten or twelve miles off shore off Cienfuegos, and that he had sent the Scorpion ahead of the fleet as a patrol and that toward daylight on the following morning, May 22, all the ships had steamed in close to the harbor entrance. "My recollection now is," he said, "that we went within a mile and looked at the harbor. But owing to trees and other obstructions it was impossible to see into the harbor."

The admiral said that after this inspection of the harbor he had taken a position with the fleet three or four miles out. "I generally," he said, "gave the position that the squadron was from the beach by the appearance of the surf, which ordinarily is not seen beyond six miles except at a very great elevation."

DESCRIBES THE BLOCKADES

Always Closer at Night—The Dear Schley Dispatch—Wood's Visit.

At 9 o'clock of the evening of the 22d the torpedo boat Dupont, the admiral said, arrived with a dispatch from Admiral Sampson. The dispatch referred to was the "Dear Schley" letter. Admiral Schley also said that the Iowa had arrived to join the fleet on the 22d, but he did not remember that it had brought any dispatches beyond an envelope containing some letters, one of which was from his (Schley's) wife. Coming to the blockade of Cienfuegos the admiral explained the formation of his fleet there, saying that he had fixed the position of the squadron every morning and every afternoon by what is known as the four-point bearing. "We were closer at night, and that," he said emphatically, "was the rule of the squadron always; we were closer at night at both Cienfuegos and Santiago. The arrangement during the day was some little feigned disorder, in the hope that we might invite those people out."

Then the admiral came to the visit of Lieutenant Wood, of the Dupont, to him, on board the Brooklyn, when the Dupont arrived off Cienfuegos. He said that Lieutenant Wood had handed him the dispatch and added that Wood was in a pitiable condition of exhaustion from overwork. Then Schley said: "I think he did me injustice when he spoke of my speaking disrespectfully of Admiral Sampson as 'Captain' Sampson. I used no such term. There was no reason why I should have done so. I invariably spoke of him as Admiral Sampson, and I do not recollect one word of the conversation which Lieutenant Wood recites—not one word—and I recollect a good many things pretty well, I am glad to say."

HOOD'S MEMORY IS CHALLENGED

Forgets a Lot of What He Should Remember, Says the Admiral.

The admiral said that the Hawk arrived about 8 o'clock on the morning of May 23. This vessel, he said, had brought the dispatch from Admiral Sampson which is designated as No. 8. This is the dispatch in which the commander-in-chief notified the commander of the flying squadron that the Spanish fleet probably was at Santiago, and directed him "If satisfied that they are not at Cienfuegos" to "proceed with all dispatch to Santiago." Relating the fact of the arrival of the Castine and a collier on the 23d Admiral Schley referred to his reported conversation with Lieutenant Hood which, he said, "is one of the other conversations I do not remember. I think," he went on, "that I can show you by a memorandum of Mr. Hood that if he had any verbal orders he forgot to report them."

The admiral then referred to a memorandum from the Dolphin published in the appendix to the report of the chief of the bureau of navigation, reading as follows: "The Hawk has just reported from Cienfuegos with dispatches from Schley. Hood says a good number of officers don't believe the Spaniards are there at all, although they can only surmise." The admiral then said that it seemed that "Hood remembered a good deal of what he said to me, but he forgot a good deal that he should have done."

The war bulletin obtained from the British ship Adula, which said that Cervera had arrived at Santiago on May 19 and left there the 20th was commented on as agreeing with the idea that Cervera was at Cienfuegos. Schley arranged with the captain of the Adula to go on into Cienfuegos, and on leaving to let Schley know if the Spanish ships were in that harbor. But the Adula did not come out while the squadron remained off Cienfuegos.

He had once seen the lights at night which were intended for signals, but of course did not know what they were, as McCalla had not informed him. "Of course," he said, "to risk a boat through the surf on a coast believed to be occupied by the enemy might have resulted in a repetition of Captain McCalla's experiment. He found that the coast was pretty well occupied."

M'CALLA ARRIVES AT LAST

Spaniards Not at Cienfuegos—Rough Run to Santiago de Cuba.

On the morning of May 24 Captain McCalla had arrived off Cienfuegos with the Marblehead and the Vixen, and the captain had, according to Admiral Schley, immediately reported to him on board the Brooklyn. The admiral said he then heard for the first time of the code of signals arranged for communicating with the insurgents at Cienfuegos. He was much surprised, and at once sent McCalla to see if he could find the Cubans, which was done with the result that it was at last known that Cervera was not at Cienfuegos, and by 6 p. m. of the same day the squadron was ready to start for Santiago.

Then came the coaling trouble. The admiral described the weather as "nasty;" when he looked through a porthole twenty feet above the water the spray dashed in. The smaller vessels took "green seas" right over their bows. The weather did not materially affect the large vessels, but the small ones had a bad time, and as he had determined to keep all the vessels together his speed was just that of the slowest. He defended this course, declaring that to keep the squadron as a unit was the true military policy. There were many delays in making the trip to Santiago. At one time the Vixen was in trouble; at another the collier Merrimac, and at another the Eagle. The weather up to the 26th made coaling impossible. It was so rough that some of the youngsters in the steerage were seasick, which was unusual.

PERFECTLY SURE AS TO SIGSBEE

That He Told Him That the Dons Were in Santiago Harbor.

On reaching a point southward from Santiago, about 4 or 5 o'clock in the afternon of May 26, he encountered the scout boats St. Paul, Minneapolis and Yale and he related the incident of Captain Sigsbee coming aboard the Brooklyn from the St. Paul, saying that the visit had impressed itself vividly upon his mind. "I recollect distinctly," he said, "that he had on rubber boots and an old blockading cap, which we all wore more or less, and an ordinary blouse suit." The admiral then proceeded to give the information which Captain Sigsbee had brought, prefacing what he had to say with the statement that he did not believe Captain Sigsbee would misstate anything for his commission.

"I do not believe," the admiral said, "that he is capable of stating what is not true. In this instance I think his recollection is at fault and not his veracity. I said to him: 'Captain, have you got the Dons here?' He said to me: 'No, they are not here. I have been in very close'—I do not know but what he said 'sketching,' but he certainly said 'They are not here; they are only reported here.' I said to him: 'Have any of the other vessels seen them—the Yale or the Minneapolis?' He said: 'No, they have not. They have assured me so.' I do not believe that any of these men would misstate the conditions at all, but I assumed from the communication with Sigsbee that he was bearing to me the assurances of all of them."

Then he had also the assurance of the Cuban pilot Nunez, who was certain that it would be impossible for ships as big as Cervera's to get into the Santiago harbor at all. The retrograde movement was begun under these circumstances, after he had found that seven of his ten ships were short of coal, remembering that the speed of the squadron was only equal to the speed of its slowest vessel. It was a big risk to send a ship alongside the collier, and in spite of what others said he felt that his judgment on that matter was the best available.

DISPATCH HE DID NOT RECEIVE

In Spite of Captain Cotton's Declaration That He Delivered It.

Referring to the arrival of the Harvard, the witness spoke of the discrepancy in the report as to the information which Captain (now Rear Admiral) Cotton, of that vessel, had brought aboard the Brooklyn. He said that the dispatch which Captain Cotton had brought aboard had said that the department's advices indicated that the Spanish fleet was at Santiago. Continuing he said: "Captain Cotton said he delivered a dispatch to me from Admiral Sampson stating that they were there. That dispatch never reached me. I never saw it. I never heard of it until the other day. If it ever was delivered it should have been found among my papers; but it could not have been delivered to me for the reason that a dispatch of that character would have burned itself so indelibly in my mind I never could have forgotten it, never.

"Captain Cotton did not communicate it to me, and there I think his recollection is at fault, and not his veracity, because I do not believe he would state anything that was not so. Neither my first lieutenant, neither my flag lieutenant, nor my secretary ever saw it or can remember it, and it is a little strange that three persons who had access to my papers at all times should have failed to remember a dispatch of that importance. So it is a mistake. I never saw it. I have no recollection of it, nor of a good many things which I have heard during this investigation."

Schley then defended himself from the charge that he disobeyed the department's orders when he started on the retrograde movement, in the light of the facts. He said his dispatch had been mutilated in turning it into cipher—the dispatch in which he said he could not obey the department's orders—and he wanted it on the record correct. He gave the disputed clause as follows: "It is to be regretted that the department's orders cannot be obeyed, earnestly as we have all striven to that end." The admiral's testimony is not a simple statement of facts; it is a defense of his actions all through.

Captain Clark, of the Oregon, testified before Schley, and praised the admiral's bearing and conduct at the fight. He also acknowledged that he had obeyed orders signaled from the Brooklyn. Commander Harlow, of the Vixen, who took notes of the fight as it was proceeding, said that at times he saw the Brooklyn receiving and returning the fire of all the Spanish ships.

Bessette Is Out on Bail.

Indianapolis, Oct. 25.—Edward E. Bessette, who was sent to jail by Judge Baker, of the federal court, for violation of the injunction at the Conkey printing plant in Hammond, was released on $1,000 bond Wednesday. The bond was furnished by the Fidelity and Deposit company, of Maryland, at the instance of the Chicago Typographical union.

New Cure for "Alienation."

Sardinia, Ind., Oct. 25.—Frank Smith shot John Neville with a shotgun. The load lodged in Neville's legs and thighs but his injuries are not dangerous. Smith suspected him of trying to alienate his wife's affections. He came home unexpectedly.

SHE SHOT THE FALLS

Woman of Fifty Years Performs a Perilous Feat and Lives.

NEITHER IS SHE SEVERELY HURT

Takes the Plunge of 158 Feet in a Barrel and Is Conscious When Released.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Oct. 25.—Mrs. Annie Edson, 50 years old, went over Niagara Falls on the Canadian side, yesterday afternoon and survived, a feat never before accomplished, and indeed never attempted except in the deliberate commission of suicide. She made the trip in a barrel. Not only did she survive, but she escaped without a broken bone, her only apparent injuries being a scalp wound one and a half inches long, a slight concussion of the brain, some shock to her nervous system, and bruises about the body. She was conscious when taken out of the barrel. The doctors in attendance upon her said that though she was somewhat hysterical her condition was not at all serious, and that she probably will be out of bed within a few days.

Rapid Ride and a Plunge.

Mrs. Taylor's trip covered a mile ride through the Canadian rapids before she reached the brink of the precipice. Her barrel, staunch as a barrel could be made, was twirled and toppled and buffted through those delirious waters, but escaped serious contact with rocks. As it passed through the smoother, swifter water that rush over into the abyss it rode in an almost perpendicular position with its upper half out of the water. As it passed over the brink it rode at an angle of about 45 degrees on the outer surface of the deluge and descended as gracefully as a barrel can descend to the white, foaming waters, 158 feet below.

Anvil Kept Her Perpendicular.

True to her calculations, the anvil fastened to the bottom of the barrel kept it feet downward, and so it landed. Had it turned over and landed on its head Mrs. Taylor's head must have been crushed in and her neck broken. The ride through the rapids occupied eighteen minutes. It was 5:23 o'clock when the barrel took its leap. It could not be seen as it struck the water below, because of the spray, but in less than half a minute after it passed over the brink it was seen on the surface of the water below the falls. It was carried swiftly down to the green water, then half way to the Maid of the Mist land, it was caught in what is known as the Maid of the Mist eddy, and held there until it floated so close to the shore that it was reached by means of a pole and hook and drawn in upon the rocks at 4:40 p. m., seventeen minutes after it shot the cataract.

Mighty Glad She Is Alive.

Ten minutes later the woman was lifted from the barrel and half an hour later she lay on a cot at her boarding place on First street en Niagara Falls on the American side. She thanked God she was alive, thanked all who had helped her in any way, said she would never do it again, but that she was not sorry she had done it, "if it would help her financially." She said she had prayed all during the trip, except during "a few moments" of unconsciousness just after her descent. The barrel in which Mrs. Taylor made the journey is 4½ feet high and about 3 feet in diameter. A leather harness and cushions inside protected her body. Air was secured through a rubber tube connected with a small opening near the top of the barrel. Mrs. Taylor is a school teacher and recently came here from Bay City, Mich.

Colonel Mills, superintendent of the Military Academy at West Point, says that hazing is a thing of the past there.

MAJOR J. T. CHENEY.

Funeral Services Held at the House Sunday.

Last Monday we mentioned the death of Major John T. Cheney, formerly of Dixon, which occurred at his home in Painesville, Ohio, on Wednesday, Oct. 16th. In the Painsville Daily Republican of Monday we find the following additional particulars, which will be read with interest by Mr. Cheney's numerous friends in this vicinity:

The funeral services over the remains of Major J. T. Cheney took place Sunday afternoon at his late home, "The Pines," a large number of his friends being present. Rev. Minot O Simons of the Unity church, Cleveland, officiated. Mr. Thomas Lees, a friend of the family, added a few words as a personal tribute to the memory of his friend, Major Cheney. The impressive service was greatly enhanced by the beautiful selections rendered by the Congregational quartet. The remains were taken for burial to Evergreen cemetery.

John T. Cheney, was born in Ashland N. H., Feb. 2, 1830, and lived there until early manhood, following mercantile pursuits, moving west in 1856, finally settling at Dixon, Ill. He was married twice, first to Miss Mary Briggs, two children being born to them, Royce L. Cheney now residing in San Francisco, California, Grace Cheney, now Mrs Chas. Lozier of Chicago. Some two years after the death of Mrs. Mary Cheney in 1864, Mr. Cheney married Miss Sylvania Severance of Dixon, now an invalid who survives him. Their home for the past five or six years has been at "The Pines" the old homestead of her mother, Mrs. Martha S. Severance.

At the breaking out of the Civil War John Cheney's patriotism soon asserted itself, enlisting as a private soldier in Battery F. 1st Reg. Illinois Light Artillery, September 24, 1861. In February of next year he was commissioned captain. In February 1864 he became major and was breveted Lieutenant Colonel March 13, 1865, being honorably discharged at Chattanooga, Tenn., August 25, 1865.

Major Cheney served in the 15th, 16th and 17th army corps under command of Generals Hurlburt, Sherman, Logan, Lew Wallace and Blair. The major was chief of artillery of the 17th army corps, on staff of General Frank P. Blair, distinguishing himself in all the skirmishes and battles around Corinth, Memphis, Vicksburg, Holly Springs, Jackson, Black River, Missionary Ridge, Knoxville, Scottsboro and Atlanta.

Major Cheney was a member in good standing of General Hancock post, No. 22, G. A. R. and although suffering greatly with rheumatism at the time of the recent G. A. R. reunion in Cleveland, he was a participant therein, meeting several of his old comrades, exchanging with them many interesting reminiscences of the civil war and camp life.

Both before and after the war John Cheney was widely known as a very popular hotel man, all through the west, particularly in Dixon, Ill., Missouri Valley and Sioux City, Ia. As an enterprising citizen of the latter place, he was a prominent promoter and for a time a highly successful one in real estate and city improvement deals, but like many others in the panic of 1893 got caught and lost everything, even his health, in the hope of regaining it.

The Major came to Painesville some eight years ago, with his wife making his home at her mother's, the Severance homestead, since which Mrs. Cheney, becoming an invalid, compelled him to remain here. Being of a particularly active make up physically and mentally, Major Cheney organized a stock company for the manufacture of novelties, known as the Black and Tan Polisher Co., situated on State street, of which he has for the past two years been manager with good prospects of eventual success, when death suddenly overtook him and ended his earthly career. The three brothers and sister remaining are the Hon. Person Cheney of Dixon, Ill.; Colonel P Cheney of Ashton, N. H.; Dan P. Cheney of Sioux City, Ia.; Mrs. Mary Wright, Plymouth, N. H.

KILLED BY A TREE.

Fatal Accident at Cedarville Yesterday Morning.

Two lives were crushed out in the twinkling of an eye Thursday morning at the little village of Cedarville, Stephenson county. The victims of the awful accident were Rev. and Mrs. Daniel M. Franz of Fairview, Brown county, Kan., who were on their way to Cedarville to visit friends. The accident was caused by a falling tree which struck the carriage in which Mr. and Mrs. Frantz were riding and crushed the skulls of both, killing them almost instantly. In fact neither spoke after the accident.

The tree which was being felled, stood beside the road and was wedged to fall the other way, but as the party passed a sudden gust of wind blew it directly across the road. Adam Franz, who was driving, saw the tree coming and ineffectually tried to avoid it. The tree crushed the buggy as though it had been an egg shell and the occupants of the carriage were pinned to the earth and the tree had to be sawed in two before the bodies could be removed. It was a most heart rending sight and women who saw it fainted while strong men turned pale.

Miss Catherine M. Daly Dead.

Mrs. W. J. Kelly went to Sterling yesterday morning to see Miss Catherine M. Daly, whom she learned was quite ill, and was greatly shocked to find upon reaching Sterling that the young lady had died suddenly at 4 o'clock that morning.

Miss Daly was the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Daly of Sterling and was a young lady of fine character, a bright student and highly esteemed and loved by all who knew her. She was born in Sterling Jan. 24, 1878, and was a graduate of the schools and business college of that city. Her death was caused from lung trouble. Besides her parents she leaves five brothers, John F. of Williams Bay, Wis.; Edward of Freeport; James of Sterling; Joseph of Nicholas, Mo.; and Thomas of Nelson. The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon.

Workmen Strike at Amboy.

Yesterday at noon the men at work excavating for the foundation for the new reservoir at Amboy quit work with the demand that their wages be increased from two to three dollars a day.

As yet the city has not agreed to meet the raise. The city official in charge of the work thinks that men can be found who will do the work for the price being paid now and before meeting the request they will try to secure new men.

Many of the strikers are men who have not had steady work for some time and now that they have it are unable to stand the prosperity.

Sir Thomas Lipton.

Sir Thomas Lipton had his first experience of fresh water yachting while in Chicago last week when the naval reserve yacht Dorothea, on which he was guest, ended its cruise by running aground, blowing out a cylinder head, and breaking the bowsprit off the Ruth, which was acting as a tender.

The Ruth is a small steam yacht belonging to Dr. O. L. Wilcoxon, a nephew of Mrs. Sarah Brubaker of Bluff Park, this city, and he was in command, but in not to blame for the accident.

Wedding Presents Smashed.

Mrs. William Weiner left last evening for Pinestone, Minnesota, to join her husband as they will make their future home there. When the train came in, a valise, containing a number of wedding gifts, rolled under the wheels from a truck on the platform. The contents, a silver tea set, gold spectacles, etc., were pretty well smashed up. Settlement was made today with the lady's father, Jacob Wagner of Ashton.

An Act of Vandalism.

Four hundred feet of cement walk, newly laid, in Sterling was destroyed Wednesday night by parties as yet unknown. The walk, which was private property, was on an unfrequented street. The work was thoroughly protected, but the depredators tore down the baricades and kicked the walk all to pieces, so that it will have to be relaid from foundation up, at a cost of about $200 to the contractor.

Lecture Saturday Night.

"Trades Union Organization" will be interestingly discussed tomorrow evening at the Opera House by Thomas I. Kidd, general secretary of the Amalgamated Woodworkers' Union. There will be a band concert in front of the Opera House before the lecture.

Dancing School.

A dancing school was begun Wednesday night at the Jones hall in Dementtown. There will be two meetings each week.

BANQUET OF THE KNIGHTS OF THE GLOBE.

One Hundred and Fifty Members and Their Ladies Enjoy the Evening.

Jno. Dixon Garrison No. 38, Knights of the Globe, entertained last evening Messrs. Geo. and Burt Remsburg, E. R. Bond and J. H. Neis of Ohio Station and Herbt. Spafford of Amboy, the occasion being the installation of the new officers for the ensuing six months as follows:

C. J.—R. M. Ayres.
S. J.—George A. Deland.
Judge—Frank S. Ayres.
Pres.—E. H. Breed.
Vice Pres.—T. H. Armstrong.
Com.—R. N. Fisher.
Lt Com.—L. E. Etnyre.
Ensign—W. S. Greig.
P. M.—C. C. Hartman.

Adjt. and collector of Local Garrison dues Robt. Fulton.

Receiver of C. L. I. A. assessments Oliver McGinnis, at Howard Johnson's store.

After the new officers had assumed their duties, and the regular business was finished, all adjourned to Armory Hall, where a banquet was served to the members and their friends, by the Eminent Ladies. More than a hundred were seated to enjoy the feast. All the while sweet music was being discoursed by the Dixon Mandolin Club. After all had been served with palatable dainties by pretty waitresses, Toastmaster Attorney Clyde Smith spoke feelingly and eloquently of "Patriotism." Dr. E. B. Owens responded in a humorous vein, as did also Attorney E. L. Shaner, Attorney R. H. Scott and E. R. Bond of Ohio gave short addresses on behalf of the visitors present. This was followed by a recitation by Mrs. E. Foster Stanbrough that was highly appreciated and won her tremendous applause. The tables were then cleared away and dancing enjoyed until after midnight.

Quick Time From Atlantic to Pacific.

A salient feature of the new transcontinental train service, which will be effective via the Chicago & Northwestern, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific railroads on Nov. 3, is the marked reduction in time necessary for a journey from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from points intermediate between Chicago and the Atlantic seaboard. For example, passengers leaving New York on the Pennsylvania limited at 10 a. m., Philadelphia 12:20 p. m. Washington 10:50 a. m., Baltimore 12 o'clock noon, Pittsburg 8:15 p. m., will arrive at Chicago at 8:55 a. m., in ample time for connection with the new Pacific coast train No. 5, via the Northwestern, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific line, which leaves Chicago at 10 a. m. and reaches San Francisco at 4:15 p. m. Under the new arrangement, passengers will be enabled to make the journey from all the cities mentioned to San Francisco in considerably less time than has been possible heretofore, and enjoy every comfort en route that is incident to travel by a strictly first class train.

BAPTISM IS NECESSARY.

Pith of Address by the Rev. Dr. Lloyd at St. Luke's Last Evening.

The text chosen by the Rev. Dr. Lloyd last evening in his address at the Mission at St. Luke's was "Except ye be born of water and the spirit ye cannot enter the kingdom of heaven." These words of Christ were analyzed in every feature and their application to the subject of baptism was thoroughly explained. The nature of baptism was fully expounded and a number of instances of its administration as told in the scriptures were read. Dr. Lloyd is very impressive in his manner of delivery and convincing in his logic. He showed his hearers the necessity of baptism from every standpoint of life. The Missioner has a deep and profound knowledge of sacred history, and his quick answers to the questions asked upon a wide range of subjects illustrated this fact. There was a large congregation present last evening.

Smothered to Death.

Uris Rask, the fourteen year old son of Marshall Rask of Prineton, was smothered to death in a grain bin at the elevator of J. S. Bocock at the North End Wednesday morning. The boy had been playing about the elevator and was last seen alive about ten o'clock. About 11 o'clock Mr. Bocock the proprietor of the elevator, noticed that the corn was being clogged at the chute leading from the big bin where the corn is delivered into the belt elevators. Investigation revealed the body of the lad. The corn bin in which Uris had entered is about thirty feet deep, and Mr. Bocock is of the opinion that there were about 1,000 bushels of corn in the bin when he entered. When discovered there were about 150 bushels of corn on top of him.

THE PEOPLE'S ATHENEUM.

Promises To Be a Great Success---San Diego, Cal., Has One.

Up to date over 150 persons in every walk in life have signed the membership lists that are being circulated by the twenty members of the membership committee of the People's Atheneum Association and from the active interest everyone seems to take in the enterprise the present outlook betokens a great success.

It has been learned that at San Diego, Cal., an organization has been founded upon the same fundamental ideas as this one is intended to be and from the report of our worthy hardware merchant, Jas. A. Prindiville, who was once a member of the California organization, it is a great success; that crowds attend it every day and night, and are highly entertained and greatly benefitted morally, physically and intellectually.

We believe, too, that Muskegon, Mich., Joliet, Centralia and Freeport, Ill., all have similar institutions and are very successful.

The Membership Committee, though large, is composed of busy people who haven't the time to visit all interested; so they have placed lists in the following stores, where anyone can read the objects of the organization and sign as either Active Charter Members or Patron Members:

Dixon Mercantile Co., Neville & Prindaville Hardware Store, Kelly's Drug Store, Downing Bros., J. H. Morris & Sons; I. B. Countryman Co.

The election of officers will take place at the City Council rooms next Monday evening.

Everyone will have an opportunity to help start this organization with such far reaching benefits to the whole public.

Sign your name before Saturday evening if possible at any one of the above places.

Strictly Appropriate.

One of the pretty Sunday school teachers has a class of little girls, and it is her custom to tell them each Sunday of some little incident that has happened in the week and request the children to quote a verse of Scripture to illustrate the story. In this way she hopes to impress the usefulness of Biblical knowledge upon the little ones. Last Sunday she told her class of a cruel boy who would catch cats and cut their tails off.

"Now, can any little girl tell me of an appropriate verse?" she asked. There was a pause for a few moments, when one little girl arose and in a solemn voice said:

"Whatsoever God has joined together let no man put asunder."—Carthage Press.

Told Him.

An old Scottish farmer, being elected a member of the local school board, visited the school and tested the intelligence of the class by his questions. The first inquiry was:

"Noo, boys, can ony o' you tell me what naething is?"

After a moment's silence a small boy in a back seat arose and replied:

"It's what ye gi'e me t'other day for haudin yer hourse!"—London Answers.

Above Suspicion.

On being informed that a member of his race had been sentenced to the penitentiary for forgery, Brother Dickey exclaimed: "Dat's what comes er dis yer eddication. Thank de good Lawd I never could read or write, en, what's mo,' I never will!"—Atlanta Constitution.

THE OLD FASHIONED BOY.

Oh, for a glimpse of a natural boy—
A boy with freckled face,
With forehead white 'neath tangled hair
And limbs devoid of grace;

Whose feet toe in, while his elbows flare;
Whose knees are patched all ways;
Who turns as red as a lobster when
You give him a word of praise;

A boy who's born with an appetite,
Who seeks the pantry shelf
To eat his "piece" with resounding smack,
Who isn't gone on himself;

A "Robinson Crusoe" reading boy,
Whose pockets bulge with trash,
Who knows the use of rod and gun
And where the brook trout splash.

It's true he'll sit in the easiest chair
With his hat on his tousled head;
That his hands and feet are everywhere,
For youth must have room to spread,

But he doesn't dub his father "old man"
Nor deny his mother's call
Nor ridicule what his elders say
Or think that he knows it all.

A rough and wholesome natural boy
Of a good old fashioned clay—
God bless him, if he's still on earth,
For he'll make a man some day!

GOT THE POSITION.

She Successfully Played on the Weakness of the Statesman.

The New York Herald tells how a diplomatic young lady who understood the weakness of politicians secured some years ago a place in the state service.

The day before the opening of the session a shy girl knocked at the door of the attorney general's office.

"Is the attorney general in?" she asked timidly.

"Yes," said the clerk. "He will see you when he gets through with this long line of job hunters. Just have a seat."

In the numerous chairs, on the office lounge and standing were 20 more waiting for a turn to press some claim for a position.

The attorney general was rather a gruff looking man, and he dismissed each with the remark: "I can't do anything for you. Sorry, you know, but there are hundreds of applicants, and each officer, every legislator, has a dozen begging for each position."

When the timid girl's turn came, she handed the impatient looking officer a letter. She said nothing. She hardly looked into his face.

"I'm sorry, Miss C., that I can do nothing for you. It was foolish for you to come here expecting to get work. I'd be glad to help you if I could; but, you see, it's this way: I have no influence to get you a position. I am very"—

"We were speaking of that at home, but I thought it would do no harm to see you," she interrupted. "And we were saying what a pity it was that you had lost your influence."

The state official winced. He looked as if something hurt him.

"Brown," he said, turning to his deputy with unnecessary abruptness, "this young lady is to have a position in the enrolling department. See that there is a place for her if you have to muzzle every legislator in the building."

Devastating Power of Locusts.

A swarm of these insects stopped the advance of a Russian army. They filled the air and blinded both officers and men, so that the former could give no orders, and even if they had done so the men could not have obeyed them. The horses would not face them, and they lay on the ground many inches thick. Every man and horse in the army was incrusted with the insects, and their clothing was literally eaten off the men as they stood helpless and blinded. The railways were useless, as the locusts covered the rails, and the oil which exuded from their bodies when crushed prevented the driving wheels from "biting." After they had settled whole regiments were detached for the purpose of trampling them to death. Trenches were dug across their path and filled with burning coals, but the crowding swarms actually smothered the fire, so vast were their numbers.

Even in a little island like Cyprus in one year one-fifth of the entire revenue was spent in destroying the locusts, and especially their eggs. When these eggs are laid, they are inclosed in a horny envelope called a "pod," each pod containing 35 eggs. In seven months 1,330 tons of pods were destroyed. Now, a single ton of pods contains 60,000,000 eggs, and yet, in spite of this almost incredible destruction, the locusts are still a dreadful plague and show little if any symptoms of diminution in numbers.

Expenses of a Yacht Owner.

There is no question that modern luxury has reached its most extravagant pinnacle in yachting, which, in the elaborate profusion of its expense, brings us very close to the latter days of the Roman empire. Take a single case. A boat like Colonel Payne's 650 ton yacht Aphrodite carries a company of 60 men—captain, first and second mates, carpenter, chief steward, assistant steward, 2 bedroom stewards, pantryman, chief cook, 2 assistant cooks, chief engineer, 3 assistant engineers, 3 oilers, 15 firemen and 19 men before the mast.—Leslie's Monthly.

Mental Quiescence.

"Haven't you any positive opinions on any subject?"

"No. By not having positive opinions, you see, a man doesn't have to wear himself out backing them up."—Detroit Free Press.

A Delusion.

Willie—Those goldfish you sent home are fakes.

Slimson—How do you know?

"Why, I took them out of the water, and they turned brown in 15 minutes."—Life.

It is a mistake to suppose that it is always the last straw which breaks the camel's back.—Chicago Herald.

THE INNS OF NORWAY

PLAIN AND WHOLESOME AND WITHOUT ANY FRILLS.

The Meals Are Formidable Affairs, and Salmon Is Always Served. Guests Are Expected to Eat Heartily and to Wait on Themselves.

At intervals of eight or ten miles along the public highway, usually in connection with the skyds stations, are inns where the traveler will invariably find the comforts if not the luxuries of life—plenty of food and shelter, bed and board. There is no upholstered furniture or velvet carpets or eggshell china, but always neat lace curtains at every window, sometimes in the windows of the stables.

A luxurious American will have to deny himself much that he is accustomed to at home and will encounter experiences and customs that are new and novel to him. But if he is reasonable in his requirements and behaves himself like a gentleman he will always meet with a hospitable although a homely welcome. The Norwegian hotel keepers measure our appetites by their own and give you so much to eat, particularly at the noon dinner, that you are stupid and sleepy all the rest of the day and snooze in your carriage when you ought to be admiring the scenery.

There is no style about the hotels, and the service is poor. The household work is all done by the landlord and his wife and daughters. There are no electric bells, and if you want anything you usually have to hunt for it and help yourself. It is the custom of the country for the travelers to make themselves at home, and you are sometimes compelled to look after your own luggage or it is liable to be left. But you will recover it again after a time. The people are honest, considerate and unselfish, but unpretentious in their hospitality. There are no locks on their doors, for none is needed. Burglars and thieves are absolutely unknown.

The bedrooms are barren of ornaments and easy chairs that we are accustomed to at home. There are no carpets and no rugs on the floor. All the appurtenances are plain and substantial, without any effort at show and very little idea of convenience. The beds are good, but usually the only cover is a comfortable seven or eight inches thick and as heavy and unwieldy as a feather bed. You can't tuck it in at the bottom or at the sides, and it is always sliding off to the floor. It is too much covering for an ordinary sleeper, and when the nights are warm, as they often are, you are compelled to choose between a chill and suffocation.

The pillows are another nuisance. There are usually a bolster of feathers about the size of a barrel and a little bit of a 4 by 9 pillow an inch or two thick, with pretty trimmings upon it. The big pillow is too big, and the little one is two small, and you solve the dilemma by rolling up your overcoat into a ball and using that instead. There is plenty of fresh, heavy, homemade linen—large, square towels that have been woven under the same roof during the long winter days.

The breakfast is abundant and often terrifying. You are at first confronted with five or six different kinds of cheese, an equal variety of cold meats, tinned fish, smoked herring and salmon, cold boiled ham, three or four kinds of cold sausage, strips of dried reindeer meat and half a dozen different jams and preserved fruits. You are expected to partake freely of that sort of provender and usually do so until you learn by experience that dried fish, boiled eggs, veal cutlets and other hot food will soon follow if you are patient. The coffee is usually good, and there is always an abundance of rich, thick cream. There is no warm bread, but five or six kinds of cold bread baked from wheat, rye and oat flour, besides the national "fiatbrod," which no Norwegian table is ever without.

The dinner is a formidable affair after the fashion of the ordinary European table d'hote, with soup, fish, roast, salad, preserves and pudding, while for supper you get the same assortment of cheese, cold meats, fish, sausage and preserves that you have had for breakfast and two or three hot dishes. Fish is the staff of life and salmon the mainstay. It is served in some form at every meal, fried at breakfast and supper and boiled for dinner, with strips of cold smoked salmon of a deep rich color on the side at all meals.

The lakes and rivers are well stocked with salmon trout, which are caught in nets and kept alive in tanks until they are needed. You enjoy them the first five or six meals, but after you have had them seventeen or eighteen times in succession they begin to lose their relish. Beer is the ordinary beverage. Everybody drinks it. Claret and Rhine wine can be had at the larger hotels, but never any whisky, brandy or other strong liquors. Local option prevails throughout Norway, and in the country districts the sale of spirituous liquors is forbidden.—W. E. Curtis in Chicago Record-Herald.

Half and Half.

"Have you suffered much from toothache?" asked the dentist.

"A little," answered the young woman in the chair, "but not much. My teeth, I suspect, are like mamma's. She has never had anything done to hers, and she hasn't an unsound tooth in her head."

"How are your father's teeth?"

"Poor papa! His are all gone. They never were anything but mere shells."

"Well," said the dentist, breaking it to her as gently as he could, "it's very evident that you inherit your upper jaw from your mother and your lower jaw from your father."—Chicago Tribune.

THE HANDY FOLDING RULE.

An Old Standby of the Mechanic In Greater Demand Than Ever.

"There are about a million different kinds of rules," said a dealer in hardware and tools, "the rules being something of well nigh universal use in one form or another in pretty much all trades, but here's one old standby that we sell more of now than ever, this being the folding rule.

"There are plenty of rules that fold, the commonly known two foot rule being a familiar example, but this particular old rule that I speak of is known by name as the folding rule.

"It is made in foot long sections, in various lengths, ranging from two to ten feet and over ten, if required, but three feet, five feet, any number of feet, the rule, whatever its total length, folds up completely into a bundle a foot long. The slats are thin and folded up, and even a ten foot rule takes up little room. It can be quite conveniently carried in the pocket.

"Lots of people use folding rules—plumbers, for instance, in measuring pipes and in measuring places for pipes. In measuring a distance greater than the spread of the arms with a tape two men are required, but one man can measure with a folding rule as far as the rule can reach, and with such a rule he can, single handed, measure around corners or in the angles of wall and ceiling or in any other bend or crevice. We sell lots of them nowadays to electricians, who use them in measuring for wiring houses, and we sell them to various other users, the six foot rule being the one most commonly sold.

"Such rules, of whatever length, are sold by the foot, at 8 cents a foot."—New York Sun.

FLOWER AND TREE.

Pruning to excess or too frequent or too long is weakening to the tree.

When a branch is removed, the cutting should be close, leaving no stub.

The apple, pear, quince and thorn can be grafted one on another, with varying success.

Wormy fruit in the orchard is best disposed of by the sheep. They eat all without making any choice, as pigs do.

Planting a few trees every fall or spring, as may be convenient, helps materially to keep up a supply of good fruit.

The cherry, peach, apricot, nectarine and almond require a light, dry and warm soil, but may be grown on loose, sandy soils.

Saltpeter is recommended as a quick acting fertilizer for flower beds that seem to be languishing, especially those that show small and pale leafage.

Peach and plum trees are both less liable to diseases when grown in the poultry yard. The trees will make a better growth and at the same time afford shade for the fowls.

Geraniums that have been used for summer bloomers will not flower again until the late spring months. Geraniums for winter blooming should be grown especially for that purpose by keeping the flower buds nipped off until August.

Love at First Sight.

We talk of love at first sight, but what shall we say of people who have never seen each other marrying and being not unhappy? "Courting," said an Irishman, "is like dying—sure a man must do it for himself."

In some countries—as, for instance, Sweden—this is not the case. There the marriages of young people are made for them by their parents, and they only begin to court when they are wedded. This sounds wrong and absurd in theory, but it often works well in practice. Indeed young people ask the advice of their parents much too little about that which is perhaps the most serious and important undertaking in life—marriage. Too many of them are like the young lady who said she hoped she might be cut into ten thousand triangles if she did not know more of everything than did her mother. So they consult no one and insist on gaining experience at a great cost to themselves.—Philadelphia Ledger.

An Alphabetical Ad.

The Schoolmaster has discovered this alphabetical advertisement in an issue of the London Times in 1842: "To widowers and single gentlemen—Wanted by a lady a situation to superintend the household and preside at table. She is Agreeable, Becoming, Careful, Desirable, English, Facetious, Generous, Honest, Industrious, Judicious, Keen, Lively, Merry, Natty, Obedient, Philosophic, Quiet, Regular, Sociable, Tasteful, Useful, Vivacious, Womanish, Xantippish, Youthful, Zealous, etc. Address X Y Z, Simmons' Library, Edgeware Road."

Paper Quilts.

In some parts of England there is quite a trade carried on by poor people in making paper quilts for their poorer neighbors. They are simply composed of sheets of brown paper sewed together and perforated all over at distances of an inch or two apart, covered with chintz or cretonne on one side and lined with patchwork or old sheets—anything available, in fact. They make surprisingly warm covers and are much appreciated.—London Tit-Bits.

Hands Off.

"What have you got that sign 'Hands Off' posted outside your works for?" asked the curious individual.

"Because," returned the jocular mill owner, "my men are on strike."—Philadelphia Record.

To discover whether or not there is arsenic in your wall paper take a fragment of it and put it in a solution of ammonia. If arsenic is present, the liquid will assume a bluish tint.

White Smoke from Soft Coal

Round Oak Furnaces have large feed doors, burn wood or coal; but whatever they burn, give greater heat than any other furnaces, because all the gases and nearly all the smoke is consumed. The smoke is white from a Round Oak Furnace burning soft coal; that means no waste fuel. The principle is not new, but the application to the Round Oak is new—in that no holes are cut through the fire pot.

Round Oak Furnaces

Lewis Ockerman, Goshen, Ind. 'DeWitt's Little Early Risers never bend me double like other pills, but do their work thoroughly and make me feel like a boy." Certain thorough, gentle. Rowland Bros,

A report from Supt. J. C. Gluck, reform school, Pruntytown, W. Va., Oct 18th, 1900. "After trying all other advertised cough medicines we have decided to use FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR exclusively in the West Virginia Reform School. I find it the most effective, and absolutely harmless.". Rowland Bros.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers never disappoint. They are safe, prompt, gentle, effective in removing all impurites from the liver and bowels. Small and easy to take. Never gripe or distress. Rowland Bros.

Chas. R. Wessmar, Evanston, Ill., writes: "My boy, 2½ years old had a bad cold which refused to yield to any treatment until we tried FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR. He was completely cured before using one bottle." Take none but Foley's. Rowland Bros.

Do you suffer from piles? If so do not turn to surgery for relief. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve will act more quickly, surely and safely, saving you the expense and danger of an operation. Rowland Bros.

After exposure or when you feel a cold coming on, take a dose of FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR. It never fails to stop a cold if taken in time, Rowland Bros.

C. M. Phelps, Forestdale, Vt., says his child was completely cured of a bad case of eczema by the use of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Beware of all counterfeits. It instantly relieves piles. Rowland Bros.

When suffering from racking coughs take a dose of FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR. The soreness will be relieved and a warm, grateful feeling and healing of the parts affected will be experienced. Rowland Bros.

J. Odgers of Frostburg, Md. writes: "I had a very bad attack of kidney complaint and tried FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE which gave me immediate relief, and I was perfectly cured after taking two bottles." Be sure you take Foley's. Rowland Bros.

Mothers everywhere praise One Minute Cough Cure for the sufferings it has relieved and the lives of their little ones it has saved. Strikes at the root of the trouble and draws out the inflammation. The children's favorite Cough Cure. Rowland Bros.

Backache should never be neglected. It means kidney disorder which, if allowed to run too long, may result in Bright's disease, diabetes or other serious and often fatal complaints. FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE makes the kidneys well. Rowland Bros.

Kodal Dyspepsia Cure is not a mere stimulant to tired nature. It affords the stomach complete and absolute rest by digesting the food you eat. You don't have to diet but can enjoy all the good food you want. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure instantly relieves that distressed feeling after eating, giving you new life and vigor. Rowland Bros.

S. A. Ingalls, Crown Point, N. Y., writes: "My wife suffered from kidney trouble for years. She was induced to try FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE and in less than a week after she began using it, she was greatly improved and three bottles cured her." Rowland Bros.

I had long suffered from indigestion." Writes G. A. LeDeis, Cedar City, Mo. 'Like others I tried many preparations but never found anything that did me good until I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. One bottle cured me. A friend who had suffered similarly I put on the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. He is gaining fast and will soon be able to work. Before he used Kodol Dyspepsia Cure indigestion had made him a total wreck." Rowland Bros.

TWENTIETH CENTURY IDEAS

Another Negro Burned to Death in the Great State of Mississippi.

Columbia, Miss., Oct. 25.—A negro named Bill Morris, who assaulted Mrs. John Ball at Balltown, La., was burned at the stake yesterday. He was taken to the scene of his crime, tied to a pine sapling with chains, and his hands and feet chained to his body. Pine knots and pine straw were piled about the body and saturated with coal oil, and the whole set on fire. The negro made no outcry when the flames first reached him, and only when he was partly consumed did the spectators notice any movement on his part. When he was captured he was shot in the hip.

Mrs. Bail, while waiting on the negro in her husband's store, turned her back, when the negro seized her and dragged her out into the road. He beat his victim on the head with a pine knot and thought he had killed her. Going back to the store he took all the money in the cash drawer and put coal oil on his feet and on his tracks when leaving. He was found at his home four miles away.

The missionaries on the spot are expected to conclude the business with the utmost dispatch.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Dr. Hiram W. Thomas yesterday resigned as pastor of the People's church of Chicago, an institution which he established when he left the Methodist Episcopal church twenty-one years ago, his cause being ill health. City of Mexico, Oct. 25.—Yesterday afternoon Senor Raigosa, chairman of the Mexican delegation, and provisional president of the Pan-American congress, sent to the governments of Colombia and Venezuela a peace telegram agreed upon Wednesday. Wu Ting Fang in Bad Odor.

Peking, Oct. 25.—There is strong opposition among conservative Chinese officials to Wu Ting Fang, Chinese minister at Washington, retaining a foreign mission. Those who take this view consider that his popularity abroad is a proof that he is not sufficiently loyal to the interests of China.

CORPORATION TAXES

Include Their Capital Stock and Franchises, in the State of Illinois.

STATE EQUALIZERS ARE ROASTED

By the Supreme Court, and the Teachers Gain Their Point—Illinois Miscellany.

Springfield, Ills., Oct. 25.—The supreme court yesterday affirmed the judgment of the circuit court of Sangamon county in what is known as the Chicago teachers' case. This, in effect, awards a writ of mandamus against the state board of equalization to compel it to assess the capital stock, including franchises, of twenty Chicago corporations, the fair cash valuation of whose capital stock, including franchises, over and above the value of their tangible property is alleged to aggregate $235,000,000.

Court Holds with the Teachers.

The case was instituted by the state's attorney of Sangamon county at the instance of the Chicago Teachers' Federation. It was for a writ of mandamus to compel the state board of equalization to assess the corporations which it was alleged had hitherto escaped taxation by the board. The court holds that the board in assessing corporations does not act as a board of review, but as an original assessor and that the performance of its duty to assess the fair cash value of capital stock, including franchises over and above the value of tangible property, may be enforced by mandamus.

Board Charged with Willful Wrong.

The court says: "Instead of making a proper assessment the board arbitrarily and willfully failed to follow a proper and long-established rule in force in this state for making such assessments by refusing to take into consideration, in making such assessments, the bonded indebtedness of said corporations. They also disregard all other rules for the making of such assessments in force at the time of the filing of this petition, and for the purpose of evading their duty sought to pass new rules for their government in making said valuations and assessments, and refused to consider the information then before them."

Opinion of a Company Lawyer.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Levy Mayer, the attorney for two of the traction companies concerned in the state supreme court decision, said yesterday: "If the equalizers follow strictly the rule of the court the result will be appalling. There is such a thing as taxing corporations out of existence. And then, with this new burden on them, they will not be able to make improvements; the tendency will be to reduce expenses, and the service will suffer. The well known position of the supreme court in regard to granting rehearings leads me to believe that the celebrated case is at an end."

SIXTEEN YEARS OF PRISON LIFE.

Record of a Man Whose Father is a Christian Minister.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Another prison term was added Wednesday to what already was the longest criminal record that has figured in the local courts. As a result Corydon Millard, who has worn stripes under various aliases, again will don the raiment that seems to be his choice. The man's prison record was made under the name of Cory Millard for the most part, and comprises five penitentiary sentences, three house of correction and one county jail commitment.

Millard's father, a Milwaukee clergyman, is said to have discarded him, while the felon's wife, it is said, has taught their children to forget their father. Millard was first sent to prison in 1875, and since that time he has served sentences aggregating sixteen years and four months. Burglary and larceny are the charges of which he has been convicted, with the exception of one instance. In 1898 he was convicted of conspiracy to kill and sentenced to the penitentiary under an indeterminate sentence.

Charleston, Ills., Oct. 25.—Mrs. Emma Roberts got a verdict for $2,000 in the Coles county circuit court Wednesday as a balm for her wounded affections. At the end of that time he begged to be released, and offered her $50. This she spurned, and sued for $10,000.

No Reason for This Abduction.

Carbondale, Ills., Oct. 25.—Charles Patchett, an 8-year-old boy of Murphysboro, was abducted from near his home by an unknown tramp. No apparent reason for the act is known, as the child's parents are poor. The child and the abductor was caught later near Dexter, Mo.

LIBERTY.

What man is there so bold that he should say,
"Thus and thus only would I have the sea?"
For whether lying calm and beautiful,
Clasping the earth in love or throwing back
The smile of heaven from waves of amethyst,
Or whether, freshened by busy winds,
It bears the trade and navies of the world
To ends of use or stern activity,
Or whether, lashed by tempests, it gives way
To elemental fury, howls and roars
At all its rocky barriers, in wild lust
Of ruin drinks the blood of living things
And strews its wrecks o'er leagues of desolate shore,
Always it is the sea, and men bow down
Before its vast and varied majesty.

So all in vain will timorous ones essay
To set the metes and bounds of liberty,
For freedom is its own eternal law.
It makes its own conditions and in storm
Or calm alike fulfills the unerring will.
Let us not then despise it when it lies
Still as a sleeping lion, while a swarm
Of gnatlike evils hovers round its head,
Nor doubt it when in mad, disjointed times
It shakes the torch of terror and its cry
Shrills o'er the quaking earth and in the flame
Of riot and war we see its awful form
Rise by the scaffold where the crimson ax
Rings down its grooves the knell of shuddering kings,
For always in thine eyes, O Liberty,
Shines that high light whereby the world is saved,
And, though thou slay us, we will trust in thee!

THE APACHE

A STORY OF TWO CHILDREN AND AN INDIAN.

Not every Apache can get his fill of blood before sun up and his fill of mescal before noon. Yet Coyote That Bites had managed to achieve both those delightful ends, and of all the happy savages on the Colorado desert he was the most riotously, tumultuously happy. With what keen delight he had drawn his sharp blade across the throats of Jose Sanchez and his wife after he had stolen into their wagon in the gray dawn, and what thrills of joy shot through his breast when he silenced the yells of their two little children with the butt end of their father's own rifle! And then, when he had taken what gold was in the Mexican's bag, what mescal was in his demijohn, and had strapped Jose's rather loose fitting cartridge belt about his sun brown belly, with what fierce pleasure he stole away from the scene of his bloody work and with the Mexican's rifle on his shoulder had wandered far down the dry arroyo, sipping from the demijohn the stupefying juice of the agave from time to time until he felt that he was growing drowsy!

Then he had dragged his uncertain way along until he had come to the railroad track. He stared stupidly at the bright steel rails and looked up at the humming wires in an awed sort of way. He would like to lie there behind the rocks, he thought, until some one should come along the track and then try a shot at him with his newly acquired weapon. The demijohn was growing light, and the rifle was growing heavy. Well, it was getting toward noon and rather warm even for an Apache, and he would lie down in the shade of the rocks over there and rest.

The humming of the wires is a soothing sound, and no sooner had his head touched the earth than sleep took a mighty hold upon him and wiped out his realizing sense of joy, as sleep has a way of doing with everybody that has anything to be joyful for. And so he lay, with the rifle by his side and his unspeakably hideous face turned up toward the blue that arched the desert.

It was quiet there and restful—no sound save the music of the wires. Stay; there were other sounds, but they came some time after Coyote That Bites had thrown himself upon the sand and gone off to the land of Nod. They came faintly at first and mingled with the murmurings of the wires. Surely they were the voices of children.

Had the red beast been awake he might have imagined that they were the haunting voices of the wee Mexican children whose blood he had so ruthlessly shed that morning, but he heard them not. They were very far from being ghostly voices anyway, those tones that now piped forth so merrily as Dubs and Gay trudged down the line. They were walking to the scoop out along the roadbed, not on the track, for that was forbidden.

There were other things that were forbidden, too, and one of them was straying so far away from the station, but Dubs was "taking good care" of his three-year-old sister, and in the pride of his six full years he was equal to the care of half a dozen such as Gay.

"'F on'y had sum matches to build a fire wiv," sighed Dubs, "I'd burn off vese prickles jus' like ve Injuns does."

"O-oh!" came suddenly from under Gay's sunbonnet. "Wot s dat?"

"W'y, it's a jug!" And Dubs left the "toonies" and started toward the pile of rocks where lay the Coyote's demijohn and where also lay the Coyote himself.

The two trudged up the little slope, and Dubs grasped the handle of the demijohn, only to let it drop again and spring back quickly with Gay in his arms, for he had caught sight of the Coyote, and he was smitten with a sudden desire to go home.

But he saw the Indian did not move, and so he suddenly became very brave. He was certainly sound asleep and no more to be feared than papa when he lay on the lounge in his midday repose. Then, too, Dubs was quite sure he was a "worky" Injun, like the Yaquis, who shoveled and picked on the railroad, and so his mind became wholly at ease.

The Coyote's cartridge belt, which had been so loosely strapped, had fallen off and lay by his side. There were a hundred very interesting bits of brass sticking in it, and the children soon had these scattered all about in the sand by the snoring Coyote. In the scramble for her share of the innocent toys Gay let one of them drop on the Coyote's leg. Perhaps the mescal's influence was on the wane, for a big brown knee was thrust quickly up from the sand and a big brown hand clutched the ugly knife at the Coyote's side, but the hand fell and the noble red man snored on.

Dubs tried on the cartridge belt and became an Indian, all but the indispensable knife, and he concluded to borrow that from the sleeper, whose fingers had lost their grip on the buckhorn handle.

"It's bigger'n mommie's butcher knife, ain't it, Gay?" the young savage asked as he grasped the handle of the devilish looking blade. "Now, you 'tand over vere, and I'll get 'hind vis wock. Ven you tum along, I'll jump out and kill you."

Gay demurred.

"Oh, it's on'y make b'leve. Vese kind o' Injuns don't kill nobody." And he stuck a contemptuous finger toward the innocent Coyote. "It's on'y 'Paches 'at kills, an' vey's none yound here, mommie says. I'm a 'Pache, so you better look out."

It was a dubious sport for Gay, and when it came to the killing part she screamed lustily.

"You've woked him up an' 'polled it all," said Dubs in a tone of accusation. "Now he'll want his knife."

Sure enough, the Coyote That Bites did shake his brown legs and arms quite vigorously, but the last two big swallows of mescal held him down. So, after turning over and burying his hatchetlike face in the sand, he lay quiet again.

When he had thus turned over, was brought into view the rifle, which had been concealed by his dirty blanket. Dubs eyed the weapon with covetous eyes. He could not withstand the temptation of feeling it all over, standing it up on its butt and trying to shoulder it, but this last feat he could hardly accomplish. Just what it was that kept his fingers off the hammer and trigger and prevented a sound that would surely have brought the Coyote to his feet with a yell, I am sure I cannot tell, but Dubs played with that fascinating weapon nearly an hour, while Gay poured sand over the cartridges, hiding nearly all of them from view.

By this time the sun's rays were on the long slant, and the children were very hungry. By this time, too, the Apache was growing restless, for the mescal had nearly lost its grip upon him. A train thundering by, or much less, a "swift" brushing against his black foot, a spider dropping on his leg, or even a big fly buzzing at his ear—any of these would have set his demon force into play again.

But the children could not wait for such demonstrations as these, though why it did not occur to Dubs that the Coyote's ear needed tickling with a grease wood twig the Lord only knows. The wind was up, and the wires were murmuring louder than ever. The wee ones had sported in the black shadows long enough—had played with the fangs of the deadly serpent until they were tired and their stomachs were empty. So they set off on a trot for home.

Just as they turned the head and came in sight of the low roof of the station a "dust devil" swept by the rocks where lay the Coyote That Bites. He jumped to his feet, grasped his empty sheath, gave a mad whoop and started about in feverish rage. There was his knife, half covered by the sand, and there was his rifle, far from his side. Here was the cartridge belt empty, and all about him in the sand were countless little footprints.

A bewildered look stole over his face, but it passed away when his eyes rested on the empty demijohn. The expression that replaced it was one of demoniacal ferocity, and the lust of slaughter lay heavily upon him. But the cartridges—where were they? He saw Gay's mound of sand and, kicking it, gave a grunt of delight to see the brazen capsules that were scattered right and left by his foot.

He picked them all up, grunting over each one. Filling the belt and grasping his rifle, he started off in the direction in which the small footprints led. Like a bloodhound, he chased along the track. His eyes scanned the plain at every turn, and his breath was hot and strong. But when he turned the big curve and saw the station he knew that he was late—too late—and he gave a grunt of disgust and was off like the wind over a side trail that led toward the sunset.

In the low roofed station house the mother crooned to tired little Gay, lying so soft and limp in her arms. She looked out over the desert, saw the sun touching the tips of the solemn giant cacti with purple dots, saw the prickly pear shrubs holding their grotesque arms above the great sweep of sand that ran down to the low horizon and felt the inspiration of the scene, as she had often felt it before, for the desert has a beauty that is all its own. She knew that other women in the great cities and in the cool, green valleys might pity her in that desolate spot, but she felt that she needed not their pity. Dubs came and leaned his head against her arm where she sat, and little Gay nestled down with a tired sigh. Yes, there was much, she thought, for which to be thankful.

And in truth there was.

Man and Woman.

The human animal finds in the opposite sex the greater part of his and her mental life. The arts rose out of sex. When man ceased to capture woman, he cut a reed and blew a tune to win her, and it was not until he had won her that he began to take an interest in the tune for its own sake.

Physical intimacies are but surface emotions, forgotten as soon as they are satisfied, whereas spiritual intimacies live in the heart. They are part of our eternal life and seem to reach beyond the stars.—George Moore's "Sister Teresa."
